

Some problems in Data Science

Abstract: We will look at several problems in data analysis that have a geometric flavor but are motivated by more fundamental questions in the structure and analysis of data. We will discuss some (but probably not all) of the following problems: the matching of activity data to behavioral metrics, the mathematics of nonlinear dimension reduction, adversarial approach to understanding neural networks, and embeddings into hyperbolic spaces.